

I SHALL BE RELEASED

By Bobby Brennan

When the dream fades with the first rays of morning light.
That's when she says, nothings wrong but something's just not right.
Now my life is filled with doubt, tell me what's this endgame all about.
As a whisper turns into a shout, I watch her hair slip thru the door.
One heart survives but one soul is lost, you buy into the dream at any cost.
Imagination runs so deep in this place where shadows never sleep.....and
I shall be received.
I shall be released.

When the dream dies, memories are all that's left to keep.
When your love dies, your only solace is in

Sleep is now the holy grail, it's the only thing that's not for sale.
As she lays me down on a bed of nails saying everything's alright.
One heart survives but one soul is lost, she puts another nail in my cross.
And asks for my heart to keep in this place where shadows never sleep.....and
I shall be received
I shall be.....

Release me now, from who I was before.
Help me find a way to unlock that door.
You and I can't be one, you and I can't be two,
There's you, there's me and something else that's three, and there's nothing we can't do.
I shall be received
I shall be released

No spirit's so strong, it can't be broken.
No mind's so set it can't be changed.
No love's so perfect, it can last forever.
No friendship's so safe it can't be strained
No lies so deep it can't be unearthed
No secret's so small it can hide forever
As she sits me down in her electric chair,
And with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.

No spirit's so strong, it can't be broken.
No mind's so set it can't be changed.
No love's so perfect, it can last forever.
No friendship's so safe it can't be strained
No lies so deep it can't be unearthed
No secret's so small it can hide forever
As she sits me down in her electric chair,
And with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches.

I SHALL BE RELEASED

By Bobby Brennan

When the dream fades with the first rays of morning light.
That's when she says, nothings wrong but something's just not right.

No spirit's so strong, it can't be broken.
No mind's so set it can't be changed.
No love's so perfect, it can last forever.
No friendship's so safe it can't be strained
No lies so deep it can't be unearthed
No secret's so small it can hide forever
As she sits me down in her electric chair,
And with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches for the lever.
with a reassuring smile she reaches.

Music & Lyrics by Bobby Brennan Copyright 2008 all rights reserved